

Under the Gun of Recession

As most of you may know, the University of Florida is taking a major financial beating due to the acute, lingering recession. Like every other department and program at the University, the Center for Jewish Studies has experienced major cutbacks in its budget over the past year. Two recent cuts have been devastating, with reductions in the Center's annual State funds in the 40% range. Worst of all, the two vacant Jewish Studies faculty positions we were hoping to fill have been summarily consumed by the system. Undoubtedly, it will take several years to recover from these fiscal and faculty-position losses.

Clearly the University and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, where the Center is ensconced, will one day begin to rebuild. At that time it is essential that the Center be ready to seize the day and recapture the progress it has demonstrated in recent years.

This a request—an appeal, really — to our loyal and potential donors and friends: Please help us maintain the level of activity we have shown over the years, so that when the time comes in 1993 or 1994, the Center will be in a position to flourish once again.

The Board of Associates of the Center — friends from around the State of Florida who have given magnificent support for Jewish Studies — gathered in Gainesville at the end of October to discuss the current situation and the long-range future. High on the agenda is a campaign for a new Professorship in Jewish Studies and efforts to maintain and increase the rate of acquisitions in the Price Library of Judaica. Plans to accomplish these goals are already in the making. Another goal is to develop a Graduate Program in Jewish Studies, but this may have to wait for an upswing in future State funds.

In the meantime, the Center has indeed maintained its high visibility on the campus and has continued to attract good numbers of students. This Fall Term about 370 students have registered in Jewish Studies courses. The estimate is that the program will register nearly 700 students during the course of the year. There continues to be strong interest in the B.A. Major in Jewish Studies, with 20 - 25 students enrolled annually in the Major. Minor (or Certificate) students number nearly 40 at this time.

(continued p.7)

Jewish Studies Instructional Staff 1991-93

- Warren Bargad, Director (Modern Hebrew Language and Literature)
- Avraham Balaban (Modern Hebrew Language and Literature)
- Shlomo Dshen, Visiting Fulbright Scholar (Traditional Jewish Societies)
- Dora Friedman (Hebrew)
- Andrew Gordon (American Jewish Literature)
- Howard Greenstein, Adjunct Lecturer (The American Jewish Experience, The Holocaust and Its Roots)
- Sheldon Isenberg (Jewish Mysticism; Classical and Modern Judaism; Women in Judaism)
- Allan Lehmann, Adjunct Lecturer (Classic Jewish Texts)
- Barry Mesch (On Leave)
- James Mueller (Hebrew Scriptures)
- Melvyn New (The Modern Jewish Novel)
- Harry Paul (History of the Jews in France)
- George Pozzetta (Immigration and Ethnicity in American History)
- Daniel Schroeter (Jewish History)
- Harold Stahmer (Modern Jewish Philosophies)
- Kenneth Wald (Religion and Politics)

Raul Hilberg gave the inaugural lecture of the Harry Rich Endowment in Holocaust Studies

Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence

The Center for Jewish Studies has been awarded a grant by the Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES), Washington, D.C., for a Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence for the Spring semester of 1992. Dr. Shlomo Deshen, Professor of Social Anthropology in the Dept. of Sociology and Anthropology at Tel-Aviv University has been selected for this prestigious academic award.

Professor Deshen attended the Hebrew University of Jerusalem where he completed a B.A. in Jewish History and Sociology and graduate studies in Contemporary Jewry and Sociology. He completed his education with a Ph.D. in Social Anthropology from Manchester University in England in 1968.

He has held faculty positions with both the Bar Ilan University and Tel-Aviv University Departments of Sociology and Anthropology and has been the Dorot Professor of Anthropology at New York University, a lecturer at the American Museum of Natural History and, in 1990, the Padnos Professor of Judaics and Anthropology at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Deshen is the author or co-author of several works dealing with various aspects of African Jewry, including his most recent monograph, The Mellah Society: Jewish Community Life in Sherifian Morocco, which was published in 1989 by the University of Chicago Press.

During the Spring, Dr. Deshen will teach two classes: "The Experience of

Dr. Shlomo Deshen, Visiting Fulbright Scholar.

Disability" and "Traditional Jewish Societies." "The Experience of Disability" will uncover the nature of living with a physical impairment, as experienced by disabled people. In particular, the following disabling conditions will be discussed: blindness, stuttering, deafness, dwarfism, obesity and epilepsy. The course will be offered through the Anthropology Department at the University of Florida.

"Traditional Jewish Societies", offered through Jewish Studies, will examine Jewish cultures and societies that functioned according to traditional ways of the Old World. The course will emphasize the value of Jewish traditional life, ranging from Morocco to the Yemen, to Iraq and India.

This is the second Fulbright grant awarded to the Center for Jewish Studies by CIES. In 1988-89, Prof. Yaacov Bar-Siman-Tov, Senior Lecturer in the Department of International Relations at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, taught and conducted his research at the University of Florida in the Departments of Political Science and the Center for Jewish Studies.

1990-91 Graduates in Jewish Studies

Ten students graduated with majors in Jewish Studies in the 1990-91 academic year: Eileen Greenbaum, Elliot Levy, Sheri O'Donnell, Kevin Weiss, Gwynn Kessler, Hadas Kohn, Danielle Leader, Elissa Rudd, Jodi Samuels and Terri Schwartz.

The Center for Jewish Studies congratulates them all. (see page 7 for profiles of some recent Jewish Studies B.A. Major and Certificate graduates)

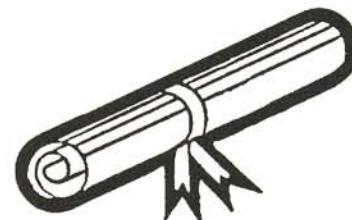

Certificates Awarded 1990-91

Fifteen students were awarded the Certificate (Minor) in Jewish Studies in the 1990-91 academic year: Daniela P. Cohn, Molly Jalenak, Craig Kolman, Alyse Slaff, David Berkowitz, Larisa L. Fisher, Audra Lane, Monique Ferguson, Dara Greenspan, Sherry Reiz, Kimberly Ann Kassow, Margaret Millender, Caren Beth Ridge, Adrienne Lea Savel, Alan Weinstein.

Jodi Samuels was awarded a Certificate in Jewish studies and also completed the requirements for a B.A. Major in Jewish Studies.

1991 Bnai Zion Award

Ms. Jennifer Zimbel of Gainesville, Florida, received the 1991 Bnai Zion Award for Excellence in Hebrew. The award is made by the Bnai Zion Foundation of New York.

Perspectives on Anti-Semitism

The Center for Jewish Studies' Fall 1990 lecture series focused upon the theme of anti-Semitism. Prof. Leonard Dinnerstein of the University of Arizona Department of History opened the lecture series on October 24, with a presentation entitled "Anti-Semitism In America." Dr. Dinnerstein discussed the history of anti-Semitism and suggested that in most countries, including America, anti-Semitism tends to occur most frequently in periods of national crisis and heightened patriotism. He illustrated this point by stating that the peak periods of American anti-Semitism occurred during the Civil War and in the concluding years of World War II, 1944-46.

Prof. Dinnerstein concluded his lecture by stating that although there are currently relatively few acts of anti-Semitism in America, anti-Semitism still exists as an undercurrent in American society.

Dr. Dinnerstein's lecture was funded by the Gary R. Gerson Lecture Series Endowment.

At the December 2, inaugural lecture of the Harry Rich Endowment in Holocaust Studies, Prof. Raul Hilberg of the University of Vermont discussed "The Origins of the Final Solution."

In his presentation, Dr. Hilberg recounted the history of the Nazi's actions leading to the Final Solution. He offered that by 1941, Germany was already actively at war with Jewry. By 1941, the Nazis had carefully defined who was to be considered a "Jew" and had begun the forced emigration of the Jews. Dr. Hilberg presented the startling figure that of the approximately 560,000

Jews in Germany, half had left by September of 1939.

Dr. Hilberg also discussed the role of the Ghettos in the Nazi plan. He suggested that Hitler was using them as a transitional measure while formulating a "Final Solution."

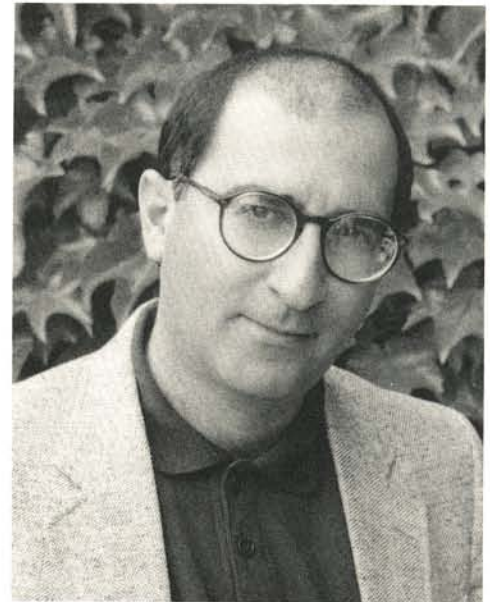

Prof. Hilberg concluded his lecture with the haunting statement that until February of 1941, Hitler had been looking at a variety of ways to remove all the Jews from Germany, including a forced mass exile to Madagascar, and that perhaps Hitler had not intended for the German Army and SS to undertake the mass destruction of European Jewry.

The Spring 1991 lecture series featured Dr. Ellen Umansky and Dr. Anton Shammas. Prof. Umansky's presentation on "Modern Jewish Women's Spirituality" was a unique and often personal examination of the role of women in Jewish spiritualism. She began her lecture by figuratively introducing the audience to Tehila Lichtenstein who in 1938 became the leader of the spiritual movement the "Society of Jewish Science" which her late husband had founded. Lichtenstein served as an example of what Jewish women could accomplish when given the chance to exchange their private and personal spirituality for the male religious leadership role.

Dr. Umansky went on to explain that until 20 years ago when women were finally allowed to hold religious leadership roles, Jewish women were typically thought of as peripheral Jews who were expected to turn inward and look to their everyday lives as the source of their spirituality. However, she asserted, women were in fact responsible for many of the traditions and rituals of Judaism such as the dietary laws and maintaining the home as the spiritual center of the family.

Prof. Umansky concluded her lecture by suggesting that modern Jewish women's spirituality is still a very private and personal experience that is tied to the reality or situations of everyday life.

This lecture was sponsored by the Arthur and Violet Kahn Visiting Scholar Fund.

Renowned Israeli poet, Dr. Anton Shammas made the final presentation in the 1990-91 lecture series.

Prof. Anton Shammas provided the final lecture of the Spring 1991 series on March 20 with a presentation entitled "The Bilingual Solution: A Vindication of the Mediterranean Poetics." Dr. Shammas' presentation was a historical and personal exploration of the Hebrew language with its tradition of written communication and Arabic which is traditionally an oral language.

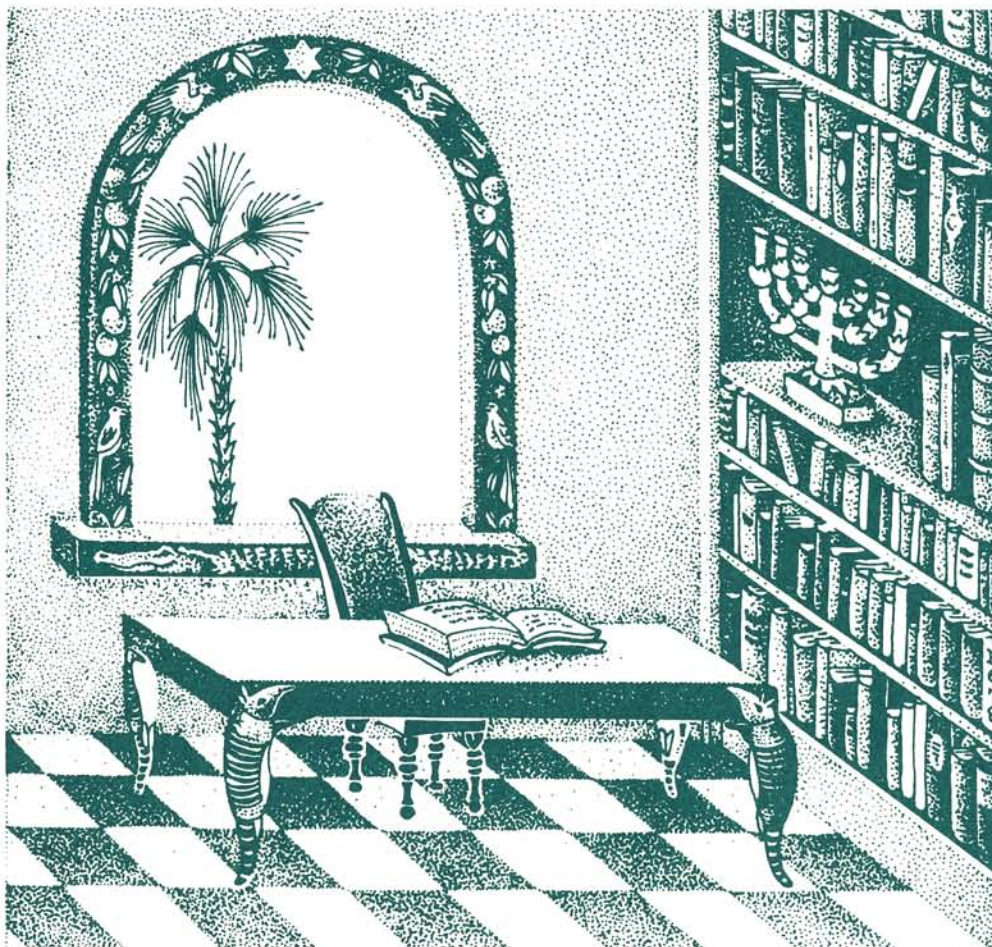

Dr. Shammas' lecture was co-sponsored by the Dept. of African and Asian Languages and Literatures, the Association of Students in Jewish Studies, and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Student Council.

Price Library of Judaica

Review of 1990/91

Since the appearance of last year's issue of AMUDIM, the Price Library of Judaica has been coping with reductions in its budget owing to allocated funds for library acquisitions being recalled by the State of Florida in response to declining sales tax revenues. This recall action resulted in only about 92% of the original budget being actually available in fiscal year 90/91 for library purchases; more drastic cuts in the 91/92 fiscal year have now resulted in a loss of over $10,000 in the Price Library of Judaica budget compared to the allocation at the beginning of 90/91. Funded with fewer dollars, the Jewish Studies Bibliographer will not be able to make book purchases of newly published volumes in a timely manner. Greater selectivity must be exercised; fewer out-of-print titles will be acquired; purchases of microforms will be deferred; and a few dozen serial titles currently received but in low demand by library users have now been identified for cancellation. Similarly, only a handful of subscriptions for new serials can be placed.

These measures, while not pleasant, will ultimately slow the growth in our collection and will have a correspondingly negative impact on the library's ability to service both the short-term and anticipated long-term research needs of the University of Florida academic community. Erosion of the collection, however painful, for a single year is tolerable; a prolonged funding decrease over several years will ultimately translate into an impoverished, outdated collection unable to satisfy the increasingly sophisticated information needs of today's faculty and students. Older volumes already in the collection but crumbling from embrittlement will unfortunately not receive microfilming attention necessary for their preservation.

Gift collections received from Rabbi Morrison D. Bial (Ocala), the late Rabbi Irving B. Cohen (Palm Beach) and Dr. Paul Hanna (Professor Emeritus, University of Florida) added numerous retrospective titles to the Price Library of Judaica shelves. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kornberg (Gainesville) have continued to donate materials and to assist with purchases of important sets for our reference collection. Gifts of materials are eagerly sought for the welcomed opportunity they bring to add desirable retrospective material not always obtainable through commercial channels.

Libraries are considered a resource for life-long learning. If you identify with our educational mission, a number of endowment opportunities for the Price Library of Judaica are especially attractive for sustaining a higher level of enriched funding from private sources if we are to overcome the budgetary constraints outlined above. Won't you please help?

For further information on the Price Library of Judaica collection, please contact Mr. Robert Singerman, 406 Smathers Library, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611 (904-392-0308).

Faculty News

Warren Bargad has recently completed a book-length study of the works of the late Israeli poet Amir Gilboa. The book is entitled Amir Gilboa: The Last Romantic. In December, 1991, he will present a paper entitled "Amir Gilboa: A Postmodernist Poet?" at the annual conference of the Association for Jewish Studies in Boston.

Avraham Balaban's book of Hebrew poems "The Right Warmth" was published in February. He has also had several articles accepted for publication including an introductory article about A.B. Yehoshua, which has been accepted for publication by Akhshav, an article about the poetry of Rahel Halfi which was accepted by Siman Kri'a, and an article about the fiction of Aharon Appelfeld which will be included in an anthology of articles dedicated to the literature of the Holocaust.

Harold Stahmer presented a paper entitled "Martin Buber and P. Caesarius Lauer — O.S.B. - Their Friendship and Correspondence (1949 - 1964)" at a Conference on "Martin Buber's Impact on the Human Sciences: An Interdisciplinary Conference" at San Diego State University in October. Dr. Stahmer knew and corresponded with Prof. Buber and wrote his Ph.D. dissertation at Cambridge on Martin Buber's theory of language. He also studied with P. Caesarius Lauer at the German Benedictine Abbey of Maria Laach during 1951-52. Father Lauer, who died in 1984, gave Prof. Stahmer copies of the correspondence in 1980.

Prof. Stahmer has obtained a $10,000 grant to microfilm the writings of his Dartmouth mentor, Eugen Rosenstock-Huessy (1888 - 1973), who was a close friend of Martin Buber and Franz Rosenzweig. Dr. Stahmer has written about the 1916 correspondence between Rosenzweig and Rosenstock-Huessy on Judaism and Christianity and about Rosenzweig's lengthy correspondence with Margrit Rosenstock-Huessy from 1917 until 1924.

Daniel Schroeter published several book reviews in the 1990-91 academic year, including: Shlomo Deshen's The Mellah Society: Jewish Community Live in Sherifian Morocco in Middle East Journal and Elizabeth Friedman's Colonialism and After: An Algerian Jewish Community in Bulletin of the Middle East Studies Association.

He also gave a paper at the Second International, Interdisciplinary Conference on Sephardic Studies at SUNY-Binghamton, and co-authored with Joseph Chetrit of the University of Haifa, a paper which was presented by Dr. Chetrit at the Conference on Sephardic and Oriental Jewry in Modern Times in Israel.

His grant from the United States-Israel Binational Science Foundation was renewed for a second year.

Robert Singerman, Jewish Studies Bibliographer, will soon complete the manuscript for Spanish and Portuguese Jews: A Classified Bibliography, to be published by Greenwood Press in 1992 to mark the 500th anniversary of the expulsion of the Jews from Spain. This new work supplements his earlier bibliography on the subject published in 1975. The two volumes contain a total of 10,000 bibliographic citations. He was also the guest editor of a special theme issue of Library Acquisitions: Practice & Theory (vol. 15:2), devoted to the collection development of religious materials. Singerman's Judaica Americana, a two-volume set published by Greenwood Press, was recognized by the Association of Jewish Libraries as the "outstanding work in Judaica bibliography published in the year 1990" at the AJL convention.

In addition to curating the Price Library of Judaica, Mr. Singerman now serves as the Linguistics Bibliographer for the University Libraries and is engaged in a new bibliographic enterprise to inventory Master's theses and dissertations dealing with Amerindian languages and language behavior.

Mel New published several essays on eighteenth-century English literature, including one entitled "Job's Wife and Sterne's Other Women." He gave papers at the Conference on Narrative Technique held in Nice, France, in June, and at the Enlightenment Congress held in England. His forthcoming collection, Telling New Lies: Essays in Fiction, Past and Present, will be published by the University of Florida Press in the spring.

James Mueller is completing articles about "Jewish-Christian Relations in the New Testament Apocryphal Literature" and "Heavenly Ascents in Early Jewish Literature."

Dr. Mueller is currently serving as Associate Editor of the Journal for the Study of the Pseudepigrapha.

Sheldon Isenberg published the paper "More Than We Can Say: Modern and Postmodern in Perennialist Perspective" in Aries, and a major review of Moshe Idel, Kabbalah: New Perspectives, in the Journal of the American Academy of Religion.

Dr. Isenberg presented a paper at the 1990 annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion, entitled, "The Metaphysics of Presence: Traditional and Postmodern Contexts" and will present two papers at the November meeting of the American Academy of Religion, one on "Aging in Judaism" at the inaugural meeting of a new consultation on Aging in World Religions.

(continued p.6)

Renowned Scholar Jacob Neusner Visits UF

On October 3, the Center for Jewish Studies played host to world-renowned scholar and lecturer, Dr. Jacob Neusner. Prof. Neusner delivered the first topic in the Center's Fall lecture series on Classical Judaism with a well-received presentation entitled "The Future of the Judeo-Christian Dialogue."

Prof. Neusner received his Ph.D. in Religion from Columbia University in 1960. His long and illustrious teaching and research career has taken him to Columbia University, the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Brandeis University, Dartmouth College, Brown University and in 1990 to the University of South Florida. Neusner's recent move to the University of South Florida ended a 21 year tenure at Brown University.

Prof. Neusner began the lecture with the suggestion that the Judeo-Christian dialogue has foundered because each side finds it difficult to address the most deeply-held convictions of the other party to the dialogue: Judaism cannot cope with the conception of God Incarnate in a human being, and Christianity finds difficult the conception of the uniqueness and holiness of Israel.

He further explained that although Christianity and Judaism are quite different religions, both sides must accept "the commonplace fact that we really do worship one God, who is the same God, and who is the only God." Within that common ground, the task of developing and maintaining a Judeo-Christian dialogue becomes one of seeking in the religious experience of the other, that with which we, within our own world, can identify. Each group must examine its own religious beliefs for analogies that allow them to understand, at least to a small degree, what truly matters to the other party.

Dr. Neusner concluded the lecture by providing several illustrations of how the resources of Judaism can serve to interpret the concept of the Christian Christ and through scriptural reference demonstrated that the life of Israel in the Land of Israel forms a counterpoint and opposite to the life of Adam in the Garden of Eden.

Fall Semester Courses

Beginning Hebrew 1, 2nd Year Hebrew 1, Introduction to Modern Hebrew Literature 1, Origins and Development of Modern Israel, Readings in Modern Hebrew Literature 1, Hebrew Scriptures, The American Jewish Experience, I.B. Singer and S.Y. Agnon, Introduction to Judaism.

Spring Semester Courses

Beginning Hebrew 2, 2nd Year Modern Hebrew 2, Introduction to Modern Hebrew Literature, The Israeli Cinema, History of the Holocaust, Jewish Mysticism, Readings in Modern Hebrew Literature 2, Early Jewish Literature, Politics of Contemporary Israel, Traditional Jewish Societies, Classic Jewish Texts, Modern Jewish History.

New Course Offerings

"Traditional Jewish Societies," taught by visiting Fulbright scholar Dr. Shlomo Deshen.

The Jewish cultures and societies that functioned according to traditional ways of the Old World are the subject of this course. Beyond the relatively well-known pattern of the European shtetl society, the course will emphasize the variety of Jewish Traditional life, ranging from Morocco through the Yemen, to Iraq and India while also examining the impact of this variety of cultural backgrounds upon later conditions, after the onset of colonialism and secularism. Particular attention will be devoted to the Israeli immigration scene, and class discussions will focus on topics such as the nature of rabbinical leadership in various traditional Jewish societies, secular authority, family relationships, the status of women, economic activities and relationships between Jews and Gentiles.

Center for Jewish Studies Graduate Assistant

Mary Robb is serving as the Graduate Assistant to the Center for Jewish Studies for a second year. Mary's duties include the Editorship of AMUDIM. She completed a B.A. in English at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada and will complete her Master's Degree in Mass Communication specializing in Public Relations in May 1992.

Faulty News contd.

He has been appointed as an Associate of the UF Center for Gerontological Studies and is currently working on a book, Aging in Judaism, which will be part of a series to be edited by himself, Gene Thursby and Harold Stahmer.

Andrew Gordon's essay-review, "The Ancient Mariner, and Other Encounters with Saul Bellow" appears in the Winter 1991 issue of Saul Bellow Journal. He reviews a recent biography of the novelist and recounts his meeting with Bellow at a conference at the University of Haifa.

Kenneth Wald spent the year as a Fulbright lecturer at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. While in Israel, he delivered public talks on American politics at the American Cultural Centers in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, gave the keynote address to the fall meeting of the American Studies Association of Israel, delivered a paper at a one-day conference on "Religion in the Americas" at Haifa University, and presented a faculty seminar on his research at the Hebrew University.

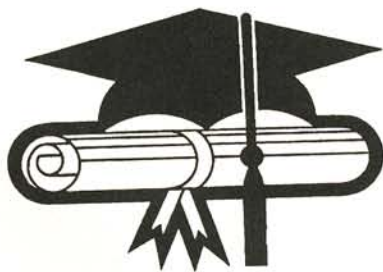

Under The Gun contd.

Happily, too, the Center's Study Abroad in Israel program is gradually being rebuilt after last year's Persian Gulf War experience. Within a year or two we should have an average of a dozen students studying in Israel for a summer, semester, or full year.

Although one of the cancelled faculty lines has been taken from it, the Hebrew program, under the direction of Prof. Avraham Balaban and with the assistance of Lecturer Dora Friedman and myself, has also continued to develop successfully. First-year classes have nearly 100 enrollees, and, incredibly, there are currently eight students in a fourth-year course, in which Israeli literature is read and discussed completely in Hebrew.

So, the news — the academic news, at least — is not all bad. But in order to continue to grow, the Center needs all the help it can get. Especially now, in these fiscal doldrums, we need to press ahead and maintain our mission of providing a full program of Jewish Studies offerings at the University of Florida. To all the donors and friends who care about the Center and its goals, please assist us now and, one might hope, in better times as well. With your abiding help the Center for Jewish Studies at the University of Florida has the potential of becoming one of the top ten Centers in the country. Thanks, and have a great '91-'92.

—Warren Bargad

Portraits of Some Recent Jewish Studies Graduates

Caren Ridge received a certificate in Jewish Studies in the Spring of 1991 and will be graduating in May of 1991 with a Bachelor of Arts in Jewish Studies and Political Science. Caren will complete her final semester as a Rotary Scholar at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

A native of Miami, Caren has been very active in student life at the University of Florida. She has served as Publicity Director for ACCENT, UF's speaker's bureau, and for the Environmental Action Group. She is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Golden Key National Honorary, and Alpha Lambda Delta. Caren also keeps busy by playing ultimate frisbee and studying Tai Chi Chaun.

Caren spent the Fall 1990 semester as an Overseas Student at Tel Aviv University. She fled from the Gulf War to Kenya, where she went on safari.

Ms. Ridge intends to study for a year in a yeshiva in Israel upon graduation and then to pursue a Master's degree in Middle Eastern Studies. Caren plans to eventually make aliyah to Israel.

Eileen Greenbaum received a Bachelor of Arts Degree with a double major in Jewish Studies and Psychology in December of 1991. Ms. Greenbaum's plans included attending graduate school in August 1991 to study speech pathology.

Name _____

Address _____

I wish to make a gift to:

_____ The Center for Jewish Studies

_____ The Price Library of Judaica

$50 $100 $500 $1000 Other

Please make checks payable to the Center for Jewish Studies.

Complete the information above and mail this card and your check to:

The Center for Jewish Studies

407 Grinter Hall

University of Florida

Gainesville, FL 32611

___ Yes, please continue to send me AMUDIM

SPRING 1992 CALENDAR

Lectures

Feb. 12 – Prof. Shlomo Deshen

Visiting Fulbright Scholar: Department of Anthropology, Tel Aviv University
“Ethnic Politics and Religion In Israel”
Location TBA
8:00 P.M.

Mar. 23 – Prof. Shifra Epstein

Department of Near Eastern and Judaic Languages and Literatures, Emory University
“On Pilgrimage of Remembrance: Documentary Film and Discussion of Contemporary Jewish Pilgrimages to Eastern Europe”
Location TBA
8:00 P.M.

Colloquia

Jan. 12 - Prof. Daniel Schroeter

Department of History, University of Florida
“Modernity and Oriental Jewry”
Friends of Music Room - University Auditorium
3:00 - 4:30 P.M.

Feb. 5 - Prof. Shlomo Deshen

Visiting Fulbright Scholar: Department of Anthropology, Tel Aviv University
Topic TBA
Friends of Music Room
3:00 - 4:30 P.M.

Feb. 26 - Prof. David Kushner

Department of Music, University of Florida
“The Jewish Works of Ernest Bloch”
Friends of Music Room
3:00 - 4:30 P.M.

Apr. 8 - Prof. Hal Rennert

Department of German, University of Florida
“German Drama and the Holocaust”
Friends of Music Room
3:00 - 4:30 P.M.

Center for Jewish Studies
407 Grinter Hall
University of Florida
Gainesville, Florida 32611

Non Profit Organization
Bulk Rate
US Postage
Paid
Gainesville, FL 32601
Permit #94