COJOT A DOCUMENTARY FILM

Presented by filmmakers

Boaz Dvir and Gayle Zachmann

A feature-length documentary that follows the life of Michel Cojot-Goldberg, a Nazi hunter, Entebbe hostage, and a Klaus Barbie trial witness. Developed from a project at the UF Paris Research Center, and shot in numerous locations in France, UK, Israel and the US, the film is composed from over a hundred hours of footage, archival documents, interviews and animation.

Boaz Dvir (Director, Producer) is Assistant Professor of Journalism at Penn State University. His recent film, A Wing and a Prayer, premiered on PBS and won Best Feature Documentary at the 2016 Fort Lauderdale International Film Festival. Dvir is also a University of Florida alumnus.

Gayle Zachmann (Historical Consultant, Producer) is Associate Professor in the Department of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures, and the Center for Jewish Studies at the University of Florida. She is currently University Term Professor and was Director of the UF Paris Research Center from 2003 until 2011.
